Family Counselling

Khuluma offers counselling in a confidential and dependable environment where the person can freely talk about their problems and feelings. Counselling normally deals with emotional crisis, trauma, abuse, violence, relationships, youth related issues, financial issues, loneliness, illness and feelings of hurt, anger, frustration, rejection, disappointment, intentions of suicide and everyday stresses.

Khuluma's professional counsellors facilitate the expansion of people's view on their life, enlarges the coping resources and skills as well enabling the person to make choices for change in themselves, the situation and their environment. The counsellee learns to manage his or her situation effectively.

Individual, group and family counselling is available in a safe, secure environment to facilitate full recovery.

Therapy

Most children cannot express their problems into words as they only use 8% of verbal communication.

Khuluma Family Counselling offers support to children (from age 6) who have emotional, behavioural or mental health problems through the intervention of therapeutic play. A safe, confidential and caring environment is created which allows the child to play with as few limits as possible but enough to ensure their safety.

Play and creativity are initiated on an unconscious level that allows for natural healing from within.

Empowerment

Helping the victim (individual) and their family to deal with the emotional stress, harm and/or trauma of what has happened through violence, crime and socio-economic conditions, be able to cope with life and start living again.

The programme runs in partnership with the Department of Community and Safety, the South African Police Services, the National Prosecution Authority and the Department of Health.

This programme has seven (7) focus areas:
